E.I.E.I.O! The sickle and the horse plow are gone. Mechanization and automation revolutionized how farmers turned to their fields and livestock fields. Processes that once took a busy day of labor to complete can now be done in a few hours, often with much better results. Will you be able to identify some pieces of equipment that make this possible? Start the test and see! While others combine multiple tasks for greater efficiency, many of these tools are highly specialized in performing only one job. Quite often, agricultural equipment is available in a certain type of different sizes and varying degrees of complexity. Farmers then get to choose from a number of models, starting with more manual ones to fully automated ones. A professional or hobby farmer will be familiar with all the equipment in this exam. If you are not a farmer but you are interested in the work of farmers, you may be surprised to know many of these machines. The problem is to get 11 out of 40 right, but I know you can do much better than that! Start! Picture: Yuri_Arcurs/E+ /Getty Images There are so many branches of information to list them all, and knowledge comes in all shapes and forms. A doctor can also be knowledgeable in neurosurgery, and a farmer may be knowledgeable in weather patterns. A chimpanzee may know the most effective way to peel bananas, and an engineer may know the most efficient way to build a bridge. There's so much to learn that it's impossible to find them all. Few people learn 289 square roots, australia's capital, North Star location, deepest position on Earth, and Manhattan weight at the same time. Very few people learn so much knowledge at different times. That's why it's impossible to know everything. Lucky for you, this test is almost impossible. If you dig deep and try to remember everything you have learned on this date of learning so far, you may be able to get every question right in this quiz. You'll have to channel your social studies lessons from years ago and combine them with the discreet street intelligence you learned today to answer these questions correctly, but that can be done.
